

Teacher Created Materials Lends a Helping Hand to Louisiana Educators

With an opportunity to provide cost-free shipping on all educational products, Teacher Created Materials reaches out to Louisiana schools affected by the recent disaster.

Huntington Beach, California, September 6, 2016 –Teacher Created Materials, a leading educational publisher, hopes to lighten the load for teachers affected by Louisiana’s recent disastrous flooding by offering free shipping on all product orders through December 31, 2016 to affected areas. Educators at school sites and districts can especially benefit from this timely gesture while processing back-to-school orders.

Realizing the challenges that disaster victims are contending with as they recover from the recent flooding, Teacher Created Materials hopes to help make the recovery a little easier on Louisiana educators’ pocketbooks. Lending a hand to help schools in time of need is second nature to the company made up of teachers and former teachers.

“Our hearts go out to the victims of the recent flooding in Louisiana. As fellow teachers, we are committed to student achievement, and whenever possible, reach out to educational communities in need of assistance,” says Deanne Mendoza, Executive Vice President. “The start of any school year can be challenging, but for these areas, more help is needed,” says Mendoza.

The free shipping offer to schools begins immediately and will be extended through the end of the year. Schools and districts in affected areas who need additional information regarding this relief can contact customerservice@tcmpub.com.
